Beethoven's in the House

Venezuelan conductor Diego Mathuez and the Los Angeles Philharmonic lead us on an imaginary tour of the house where Beethoven was born. Through this journey we discover Beethoven's passionate determination to create and how that drive inspires us all.

Frequently Asked Questions:

Q: How many students may I bring?

A: The minimum number of tickets per group is 10. Classroom teachers may bring up to 40 students and 4 adults. Music teachers may bring up to 100 students and 10 adults. The maximum number of tickets per school is 175 (including students and adults). The application must indicate the number of students that will attend the concert if your school is selected.

Q: Do I have to provide my own transportation?

A: Each school is responsible for providing transportation to and from Walt Disney Concert Hall. You may contact the Los Angeles City Council offices and School Board offices, as they may be able to provide low-cost or no-cost transportation for schools.

Q: How are classes selected?

A: Classes will be selected through a random drawing after the application deadline. Seating is limited. Receipt of application does not guarantee seating. The Los Angeles Philharmonic is not responsible for lost or misdirected mail or faxes. The Los Angeles Philharmonic reserves the right to refuse schools on the basis of past behavior or attendance problems.

Q: How will I know if my school was selected and when will we receive our tickets?

A: You will be notified of acceptance status no later than November 13, 2009. Seat assignments will be distributed at the required workshop.

Requirements:
